Introduction

The European Union is being confronted with a growing number of complex, overlapping, cross-border crises. The full scale Russian invasion of Ukraine has, of course, greatly aggravated the challenges, and has thus forced all of us to acknowledge that we need to deal with this new normal of European security. The half-day conference is organized by the Greens/EFA parliamentary group.

The panel "Rethinking European Security" will address the various dimensions of security that we have to take into account. The panel "Shaping a multilateral world - with whom?" will look at the question of who the EU should partner with to build more security in international relations.

(Please note: The number of seats at the venue is limited.)
